Los Angeles – On October 5 & 6, the Prescott Rally marked the finale of the California Rally Series 2017 championship. Held amongst the red rock canyons and lush Verde River Valley northeast of Prescott, AZ, the rally offered its usual amalgam of smooth, flowing stages with picturesque scenery. The 110 miles of competitive stages were run in conditions ranging from clear skies to dead of night, with sun glare and hanging dust testing how well drivers trusted their co-drivers.

Following his win at the Gorman Rally in August, Flynn Baglin had a narrow lead in the Open four-wheel drive driver championship over defending champion John Coyne. Baglin and co-driver Stacy Hochanadel drove a clean, fast rally, winning the class on Friday night while a transmission issue in their Subaru took out Coyne and co-driver Doug Nagy after two stages.
